

Contract/Occasional Web Design Opportunity

Foxhound is looking for occasional help on a variety of projects. Anyone who has some spare time can work from home on their own hours/terms and if they can meet all of our requirements, they would make 30/hr. If they can't do everything but still have something cool to bring to the table, we're happy to negotiate a rate. It could be a grad or a student with their schedule under control.

What we're looking for is a digital guy/gal that understands what it means to design for the screen. This means basic knowledge of web dimensions, readability, limitations of the web, etc. We always have a ton of projects on the go designing websites from the ground up, re-working/improving current websites, designing iPhone apps, etc.

We're looking for someone who...

- Can design pixel-perfect websites in Photoshop
- Is a CSS master and can slice PSDs if need be
- Experience with using Wordpress
- Can meet deadlines they've agreed to 100% of the time
- Can say no to projects if they realize they won't have enough time

Bonus points:

- Likes rad music

Send us an email to us@foxhoundstudio.com with some examples and your availability and we can talk. Doesn't need to be a fancy portfolio or anything, just a couple links with some good solid work there will do :)